

Continuing Education

At the World Mental Health Organization's Community Health Work Training Institute, we understand the importance of continuous professional growth in the community health field. That's why we offer Continuing Education Programs to help our students maintain their state certification and stay current with the latest practices, trends, and regulations in community health.

To keep your certification active and in compliance with state requirements, we offer a yearly continuing education program specifically designed for Community Health Workers. Our courses are carefully curated to provide valuable, up-to-date content that enhances your knowledge and skills in key areas like mental health, substance use disorder, care coordination, health education, advocacy, and much more.

Our Continuing Education Program ensures that you remain equipped with the most relevant, evidence-based knowledge to serve the communities you work with effectively. Whether it's new regulations, innovative health strategies, or evolving best practices, our program ensures you're always at the forefront of community health work.

By completing the required continuing education each year, you not only maintain your certification but also demonstrate your commitment to providing the best possible care and support to the individuals and communities you serve. This program is flexible and accessible, with options for online courses and in-person training, allowing you to complete your education at a pace that fits into your busy schedule.

Stay certified, stay knowledgeable, and continue to grow as a Community Health Worker with our Continuing Education Program. We're here to support your professional development every step of the way.
